

Appearing at the Confederation of British Industry conference:

Gordon Brown MP, Chancellor.

He tells us that we can't afford welfare spending or pay the fire fighters, and everything must be privatised. He far less prudent when it comes to spending vast sums on war (addresses conference mid-day Monday 25th November).

Paul O'Neill, US Treasury Secretary.

The US arms budget is $396 billion, more than the next nine biggest spenders combined. Meanwhile, 45 million Americans have no access to health care.

Lord Browne of Madingley, boss of BP.

The Chief Executive of BP has to survive on only £5,521,380. Burn the Planet BP wants its share of post-war privatised Iraqi oil and has been found funding paramilitaries in Columbia.

Tony 'the bomber' Blair MP, Prime Minister.

Roving US Ambassador and fully paid-up member of the Poodle Club). Due to being the second most unpopular man in the world over war on Iraq, secrecy surrounds Tony Blair's appearance at the conference.

Plus numerous other leading New Labour figures, directors of the arms manufacturers, and the private companies after our public services.
