BEDROOM RADIO

Filmed over a period of 18 months, Bedroom Radio is a story of Pirate radio broadcasting, Love, Life, and Death on a different Scottish frequency.

Bedroom Radio is an intimate and compassionate insight into life on the wrong side of the M8's hard shoulder. It captures the highs, lows, dreams and tragedy of scheme life, yet remains a positive film about aspirations, hopes and dreams in a notoriously deprived area of Scotland.

Bedroom Radio is conviction filmmaking at its best - high energy, risky, rough, tragic and 100% human...

Gary (DJ Allusion) and Yvonne (DJ Miss-Chief) are a young couple, who live on a tough Paisley housing estate. Most nights they broadcast from their one bedroom flat on Gary's pirate radio station: Allusion FM.

In a world where the drug dealer and money lender rule, and where alcoholism and violence are an everyday reality, it is ironic that the only positive thing that this young couple can do for themselves is illegal.

"When you run a pirate radio station you're not just up against the law – you're up against the government..."
