The Untold Story of the Drowning of New Orleans

In this film, Greg Palast and his team travel to New Orleans to investigate what happened in the year after Katrina devastated the Gulf Coast. He discovers that the population of New Orleans is minuscule, the reconstruction sparse, suicide rates are climbing, and many have not returned, and do not know how to return, to the city that care forgot. He examines why residents had to leave, what really caused the flood and why they aren't returning.
