Meeting of the political opposition at Kinshasa, april 24, 2016 (DR Congo)

In DR Congo, Sunday, April 24, 2016 was a day of public meetings. The opposition and the majority held to celebrate the anniversary of the democratic opening. A victory snatched April 24, 1990 after a dictatorship that lasted almost three decades. On 24 April 1990, in the "Speech of democratization", Joseph Mobutu announces the end of the single party. In Kinshasa as in Bukavu (South Kivu) and Goma (North Kivu), the meeting of the opposition took place smoothly, but in Lubumbashi, a rally was dispersed by the police.

in his words, recalled the heroic struggle of the Congolese people which led to the political opening on 24 April 1990. "We refuse slippage term of President Kabila, we demand the presidential and legislative elections within the constitutional time", said many speakers of the day. For them, no dialogue initiated by President Kabila. The police who were present near the location of the meeting has left to do. And all ended in order. No slippage to the gathering of the majority, which has also commemorated the 26th anniversary of the multiparty system. The meeting was held a little further, at the interchange of Limeté. Protest held in Goma (North Kivu province) and Bukavu (South Kivu province), but dispersed in Lubumbashi in the province of Haut-Katanga.

2. In Lubumbashi, Moïse Katumbi prevented from holding the meeting

However, in Lubumbashi, in the south-East², a gathering of opposition activists gathered to hear the opponent Moses Katumbi (nominated for the presidential election of November 2016) was dispersed by the defense forces and security. The applicant claimed to have been shot at the police. Tear gas was also used to disperse the demonstrators. The team of observers from the Joint Office of the United Nations for Human Rights was prevented from accessing the place of the gathering.

"The events that took place today (editor's note: April 24, 2016) in Lubumbashi are serious, as a political candidate was prevented from holding a meeting," says José Maria Aranaz, director UNJHRO (United Nations Joint Office to human rights) in DR Congo. "We heard an abusive use of force, of live ammunition and using tear gas. We are currently checking this information, and search if he is injured. For now, we have a slate of four people arrested this weekend, the majority of them today. We are very concerned about such incidents, which have a negative impact on the credibility of the electoral process. "

But the spokesman of the government Lambert Mende denies any desire to intimidation by the authorities. According to him, "the police did their job." "It was forbidden to obstruct traffic. The population was embarrassed and police opened traffic, "he says. "I do not see what the Joint Office of the United Nations has to do with it. We can not force people who are not affected by an event to participate in annoying traffic. And so the police used tear gas to disperse people who wanted to stifle. There were some administrative arrests. But without major consequences, in my opinion. "

Several people were arrested during the missed event. Among them, the bodyguard of Moses Katumbi and its drivers. The former governor of former Katanga province, became opponent, condemned those acts, "There have been several arrests. These people were not armed. I call to witness MONUSCO. MONUSCO was there. It was a peaceful march until - before arriving at the stadium, 500 meters from where we were to make the meeting - they [the police] started to fire tear gas with bullets real. But it's killing who? The Congolese people? . I strongly condemn it, "Moses Katumbi has also said he would not bow to intimidation of those in power:" We call that democracy can reign in our country and that on December 16 it [was] another president Republic. The first alternation! And we applaud, because it will be a gain for the Democratic Republic of Congo. This is the most important! "On this occasion, he asked the military to remain apolitical. "In Katanga there is no war," he said, referring to the military arsenal strengthened in recent days in Lubumbashi and its surroundings. Contacted, the police officials in Lubumbashi did not wish to react immediately.
